MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very nervous condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to go through. I had to go to bed at times and was perfectly quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all women who have the opportunity."—Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2514 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Cotton Dresses in Variety for Spring

Cotton dresses in the early spring lines cover a wide range of material, from a plain fabric in a simple semi-sporty model to a tailored dress that could grace a party. Linen, imported and domestic ginghams, ratines, organges, voiles, French and Irish linens, dotted swisses and Swiss organdies are made up in straight-line tailored frocks as well as in those models that stress a slightly bouffant line at the hips. Color is generously distributed. White, pink, green, blue and rose are in vogue, organdies and voiles. Cutwork—embroidered, solid-colored, sections of embroidery in color—all these are used to trim the sheer fabrics. Flared voiles in dark colors make a type that is not unlike a silk tulle. Ruffles and collars and cuffs of the embroidered organdies are the major trimming for these.

In the linen group, sliver embroidery is an important feature. Straight-line frocks have a pocket of plain fabric to accentuate more strongly the charm of the embroidered surface. These types, in pale shades of green and tan, present an interpretation of tailored linen that can be used equally well for sports or morning wear.

Gingham treated with plain chambray, in bolero collars and insets, is included in the line. One gingham dress has a butterfly collar.

Three-piece costumes in linen have built-in embroidery and attractive blouses. One model has the blouse ruffled and trimmed with white prints.

High-Pressure Oiling— 2 Gallons a Minute!

LUBRICATION is life—in motors. Because it defeats wear and vibration. Jewett has a hollow crankshaft, high-pressure system, forcing 2 gallons of oil per minute to all main and connecting rod bearings, and spraying the entire internal mechanism. Metal never rubs metal in a Jewett motor—a thin film of oil safeguards bearings.

The results of such ideal lubrication are real smoothness and decided silence. Further, the continuous oil-stream tends to keep bearings cool, and Jewett takes long distances at high speeds, climbs continued grades, or trudges soft roads, without overheating. You know what happens to cars equipped with circulating and splash lubrication, under like conditions. Let us show you the Jewett! You try to overheat it.

Here's another

OLDSMOBILE

Wins by Comparison

Do you know what the king bolts are? They are really the connection between the front axle and the front wheels of your automobile. Your driving ease and safety depend on the size and strength of these two important pieces of steel. If you drive an Oldsmobile you will have the benefit of king bolts that are 1 inch in diameter—instead of ¾ inch which is the usual size.

This is just one more feature of Oldsmobile oversize construction which assures you extra years of satisfying trouble-free service.

And remember—the Four's oversize, wear-resisting construction means high re-sale value.

PAYING MONEY TO THOSE WHOM YOU CAN TRUST

That season of the year being here when schemers of all sorts resort to what they term "country districts" to induce people to part with their money for things of little value, and sometimes none at all, it behooves every person to be constantly on their guard against smooth-tongued, deceitful strangers.
 One common form of effort to secure money without return to the persons victimized was brought to a sudden stop in this community the other day when Mayor Mitchell committed two men to jail who had been charged with defrauding citizens on the pretext that they were soliciting subscriptions for magazines. It was alleged, however, that they were appropriating the money to their own use instead of sending it to the publishers.

This is not a new scheme, exploiters of it operating in some community every spring and summer. It is one by which many unsuspecting people are caught for small sums each but which, in the aggregate, make a good haul for the swindlers who practice this form of false pretense.

There is only one safe way to deal with such solicitors. That is to refuse giving them any money. If you have doubt as to their methods of operation, report them to the police for investigation. There are some honest men and women who travel about in the legitimate business of selling publications and they can give satisfactory proof that they are what they represent themselves to be. Better yet is it for you to give your orders to persons in the city whom you personally know to be agents of the standard publications or to deal with the local newsdealer, a part of whose business it is to sell subscriptions as well as single copies of publications.
 In such cases it is not only helping some establishment or individuals but in saving your money to pay it to someone you know and can trust.

MARKING A STEP IN OUR PROGRESS

Tomorrow's exercises connected with the laying the corner stone of the new church home of the First Methodist Episcopal congregation will be of first interest to the members of that brotherhood and only scarcely less so to the whole community.
 It will mark a step in the progress of a very large undertaking which is significant of the growth in the strength and influence of the religious forces in this section as well as the advances being made in the adornment of the city by handsome, commodious and modern church structures.

Must Stand With the President

Harrisburg Telegraph.

Failure of the State of New York to live up to its obligations to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution is not to doctor President Harding from doing his best to preserve law and order in that commonwealth. He has served notice that he means to act if the State of New York does not.
 The President is right. Law is law and the Constitution must be upheld. If one class of lawbreakers may flout it, why so may another. If a State government so far forgets itself as to fail in its duty to the Nation, it just expect to have the National Government step in and do the thing for itself.
 The law-abiding people must stand on this issue and if the State of New York regards its own good name as "richly now as it has in the past it will stand before it brings itself into national disgrace.

THE GENTLE DEEDS.

Who would be loved needs neither A wreath of fame Nor robe of glory. He has but to find Room in his heart for gentle deeds and kind.
 Men's eyes shall glow at mention of his name. Recalling joys which blossomed when he came And the sweet memories which he left behind.
 The stamp of worth is printed on the mind. In lasting letters marble cannot claim.
 A gentle way when sorrow hides the sun. A kindly voice when all the thoughtless cheer. A heart forgiving when a wrong is done.
 These are the traits which all men prize. Who would be loved on earth has but to find Room in his heart for gentle deeds and kind.

Popularizing Gardening.

Gardening would be more popular were there a proscribed natty costume for the gardener, stylish bag for the tools and a boy to carry it.

The Cost o' Heart Balm

MRS. EM BEASLEY WAITIN' FER TH' JURY T' COME OUT.

How Mrs. Em Beasley's lawyer kin make a jury believe she ever had her husband's love, or how she knows a wonky widder has it, or how it kin be proved her husband ever had any love for her t' begin with, is what it's all about. At the trial she valued her husband's love at $500,000 and her attorney insisted that she be paid the amount. Those who know the Beasleys say that Mrs. Beasley never treated her husband, Al, as though she considered his love worth thirty cents, but we guess she immediately jumps in price the moment it begins t' wander and then it's about it on suitin' begin. We recall that Beasley Moon front the value of his wife's affections at $75,000 and finally took $125. Mrs. Beasley's husband deserted her for a counter girl at the Little Gem restaurant and she didn't fix no price on his affections at all. She threw some vitrol on the counter girl but she never tried t' collect anything. Some times if a woman don't feel like gettin' t' court about her husband's love she just shoots him, and then nobody gits it. Often a fella'll shoot his wife when she searches her love t' somebody that ain't got nothin' and sometimes he tries t' kill all his kin. Rich citizens and the like had it much cheaper and less expensive t' quietly pick out another wife when their homes break up. They're no regular fixed price for heart balm. Some times if a husband don't care for money he'll jump in and shoot his wife and all her folks. He kin round up. Then he'll go, showin' that he kin live an' wants t' live without her. Joe Dan's first wife ran away with the Al-o-Crow, and Joe sued an' got $3,000 damages, and then his wife swished her love right back t' him and they went t' housekeepin' till the money was gone. But by that time his wife had grown bulky and had lost her symmetry and she finally skipped out with an elderly fruit tree agent. When Al Beasley heard that his wife wanted t' go, he gave her $500, and he thought some o' goin' back t' her, or at least a lookin' around a little more before settlin' down with a woman much older than himself, feelin' that he might do better. It's hard t' say if he'll stay t' allow Mrs. Beasley $500,000 as her husband is a travellin' man an' has neuritis, but you can't tell what a country jury or a reform major 'd do. We don't know what love's worth, but we do know that the sales that are asked t' pay these awful prices never do it without or-hanstin' over legal resources. We often wonder how a woman feels when a fella' that she feels t' love an' affection kicks an' says t' her.

Rockwood Youth Fires Revolver While Asleep

ROCKWOOD, May 18. — Bruce Christian, about 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Christian of Garrett, probably owes his life to a rag and that because he lived in a 25-calibre revolver, and which in some manner exploded. The young man came to Rockwood about a month ago and was employed by his uncle, J. R. Miller, driving a team. He made his home with the Miller family. In the home was a revolver that some members of the family had been playing several days before. A rag used in cleaning the gun became wedged in the barrel and was left there, presumably for the time being. Young Christian came home and retired early. After having been asleep for some time and about 9:30 o'clock a shot rang out in Christian's room. Investigation developed that the young man had got up in his sleep and taken the revolver and fired it. That the rag was not in the barrel would probably have prevented the fatal result, but the powder marks were in evidence right over that portion of his breast.

King Tut's Subjects

It seems likely that when King Tut's subjects wanted a hot bath, they were simply "out of luck." Perhaps in that is found the cause of the final fall of Egyptian civilization. Next to purity of water supply, and safe disposal of sewage, hot water appears most essential to sanitation; and the record of history is clear that the rise of any nation was almost parallel to the attention paid to sanitation. For example, Rome flourished until its citizenry allowed themselves to be overflooded with hordes of barbarians, devoid of knowledge of, or respect for, sanitation.

Fortunately, the American people realize the necessity of hot water. If your bath room, kitchen and laundry are not modern in every respect—call Bell 346 or Tri-State 122. You'll be pleasantly surprised when you hear our price for modern fixtures.

AMERICAN HOUSES IN EUROPE

Ex-Immigrants Who Return to Their Native Lands Copy Structures They Have Seen Here.

In every country we visited the changes in housing were the most obvious expression of changed standards of returned immigrants.

In Slovenia, next to the ex-immigrant's old tiny dwelling, stands a new one, built with money he earned in America. Looking down on an Italian village, one can pick out from the roofs the houses of Americans. In parts of southern Italy, one now sees hillside dotted with small detached dwellings, telling the tale of savings as well as the illustration from the old custom of building together in towns, a remnant in Italy, as in other countries, from the days of brigandage.

Unfortunately, the new "American" houses are often unattractive—too like the models they copy. Occasionally, however, the reverse is true. One recent house, for instance, has proportions much like an old New England colonial farmhouse. And, sure enough, the owner had patterned it after the dwelling on his employer's farm in Massachusetts.

In Albania, the city of Korcha—almost the whole adult male population of which had been in the United States—presented interesting adaptations of American architecture; now an iron railing instead of the old wall, now a garden fronting on the street, expressed the feeling of ex-immigrants that "houses look friendlier without walls. And now that we're an independent nation, and the Turks and Greeks aren't pounding in on us, we don't need walls."—Viola I. Paradise and Helen Campbell in Harper's Magazine.

Overcrowded.

Billy's nose was out of joint, all on account of the arrival of little sister. He took his overcoat and hat to the nurse and asked her to put them on him, as he was going away. She asked him if he hadn't better wait and see his father. He replied: "I'm going to my father now. This house is getting too crowded."

The Rosenbaum Store

To the Buying Public of Connellsville District

BEHIND the name "Rosenbaum Bros." stands years of prestige and big business building. This was only obtainable through 32 years of continuous value-giving achievements and quality merchandising.

The people of Uniontown know us—they know that we sell "Quality Merchandise" at a fair price—and appreciating that fact, they have helped us to build up that wonderful institution known as "Rosenbaum Bros." which, for volume of business done, and reputation for fair dealing, is second to none in this county.

Quality Merchandise at a Fair Price

Our aim at all times has been to present the newest and most authentic styles in apparel and accessories at the very outset of the season, and to carry complete lines of "staple" merchandise—offering them at the lowest possible margin of profit.

This same policy that has given us such an enviable reputation in Uniontown and district is carried out to the fullest extent in Connellsville—to portray the newer modes as they appear day by day, and to offer to the public only "Quality" merchandise.

Our New Business Very Gratifying

Although our new store in Connellsville has only been in existence since September last, and in spite of the fact that we have never favored the use of "sensational" advertising, and will not handle cheaper merchandise to sell at ridiculously low prices—in spite of these facts, our daily increase of new business is very gratifying, which goes to prove that the buying public of Connellsville know "quality" and "value" in merchandise, and realize that this is one of the few stores where equal quality can be obtained at a like price.

We invite the people of this county to pay us a visit, to inspect our merchandise, to read our advertising, and to compare the values offered EVERY DAY with those of other stores.

SUCH A GOOD ONE ON MYRTLE

By EDWINA

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS
A Romance
by Zane Grey
Illustrations by W. H. Myers

"Work, of course, has much to do with any one's happiness," replied Madeline. "No one can be happy who has no work. As regards myself—for the rest I can hardly tell you. I have never tried to put it in words. Frankly, I believe, if I had not had money, I could not have found such contentment here. That is not in any sense a judgment against the West. But if I had been poor I could not have bought and maintained my ranch. Madeline tells me there are many other ranches than mine, but none just like it. Then I am almost paying my expenses out of my business. Think of that! My income, instead of being wasted, is most wisely used. I think I hope I am useful. Of course my ranch and range are real, my cowboys are typical. If I were to tell you how I feel about them it would simply be a story of how Madeline Hammond sees the West. They are true to the West, it is I who am strange, and what I feel for them may be strange, too. Edith, hold to your own impressions."

CHAPTER XVI

Bonita.

Having exhausted all the resources of the mountain, and that had interest for them, Madeline's guests settled quietly down for a rest, which Madeline knew would soon end in a desire for civilized comforts. They were almost tired of roughing it. Madeline's discontent manifested itself in her remark, "I guess nothing is going to happen, after all."

Madeline awaited their pleasure in regard to the breaking of camp; and meanwhile, as none of them cared for more exertion, she took her walks without them, sometimes accompanied by one of the cowboys, always by the stage-hounds. One day, while walking alone, before she realized it she had gone a long way down a dim trail winding among the rocks. It was the middle of a summer afternoon, and all about her were shadows of the crags crossing the sunlit patches. The quiet was undisturbed. She went on and on, not blind to the fact that she was perhaps going too far from camp, but risking it because she was sure of her way back, and enjoying the wild, craggy recesses that were new to her. Finally she came out upon a bank that broke abruptly into a beautiful little glade. Here she sat down to rest before undertaking the return trip.

Suddenly Russ, the keeper of the stage-hounds, raised his head and growled. Madeline feared he might have scented a mountain lion or wildcat. She quieted him and carefully looked around. The little glade was open and grassy, with here a pine tree, there a boulder. The outlet seemed to go down into a wilderness of canyons and ridges. Looking in this direction, Madeline saw the slight, dark figure of a woman coming stealthily along under the pines. Madeline was amazed, then a little frightened, for that stealthy walk from tree to tree was suggestive of secrecy, if nothing worse.

Presently the woman was joined by a tall man who carried a package, which he gave to her. They came on up the glade and appeared to be talking earnestly. In another moment Madeline recognized Stewart. She had no greater feeling of surprise than had at first been hers. But for the next moment she scarcely thought at all—merely watched the couple approaching. In a flash came back her former curiosity as to Stewart's strange absences from camp, and then with the return of her doubt of him the recognition of the woman. The small, dark head, the brown face, the big eyes—Madeline now saw distinctly—belonged to the Mexican girl Bonita Stewart had met here. This was the secret of his lonely trips, taken ever since he had come to work for Madeline. This stealthy glade was a rendezvous. He had his hidden there.

Boys Like the Beech.

The beech has many qualities which commend it for highway planting. It is a tree of rugged growth, with dense foliage of surpassing beauty, and lends genuine charm to the roadside landscape, says "Trees as Good Citizens," a book that goes into all kinds of tree planting in plain language. Its one drawback, many one, is that its smooth white bark is a perennial invitation to the carving of initials.

Shoes, Gowns and Beards—of the Egyptians

Blame it on King Tut, seems to be the latest explanation for the eternal puzzle of women's fashions.

Adapted from a book by the National Geographic Society.

"The long one-piece dress so much in vogue today is similar to that worn by the women of ancient Egypt," says the bulletin. "The words of an account describing the dresses worn by Egyptian women more than three thousand years ago might easily be mistaken for lines from a modern newspaper story of a woman who by the women of fashion at some smart affair."

"The dresses of women consisted of a loose robe reaching to the ankles, with long sleeves, and decorated at the bottom with a fringe."

"Over these robes they sometimes wore a sort of petticoat secured at the waist by a girdle. The women of the higher class wore the loose dress at the waist with a colored belt."

The Gown of Queens.

"Women of high rank wore dresses of that type to some extent, but with the advent of Tutankhamen's reign, have been revealed to the patterns of dress used by the women of his court."

Again our old chronicler says: "The gown was of richly colored stuff, presenting a great variety of patterns and unlike modern gowns, the most elegant of which were a piece for the body and skirt and the dress of the queen."

And Fifth Avenue fashions are beginning to resemble the gown of Egypt, among which we count the most alluring and wily lady in history.

"The Egyptian flapper" was dressed in one particular. She wore her hair in a number of long plaits, with perhaps a plait or two hanging down with soft loose ends in front of each shoulder. But the modern girl is a modern amateur with her hairdo. Her hair is pinned up in a bun, or in a chignon, and she wears a headband or a tiara.

Were Huge Earrings.

"Her earrings, too, were particularly large and elaborate. Sometimes they were large, round, single hoops of gold two inches in diameter and larger. Royal ladies sometimes wore a colored golden cup, whose body was set in precious stones and the rim of whose rim passed through the holes in the ears."

"Egyptian women, however, wore a great many rings, crowding up numbers of them on the third finger of the left hand, while even in those days was considered the ring finger for the thumb. These were often worn of palm leaves and papyrus, but were sometimes cut out of leather and lined with cloth. Conceals for an individual was expressed by painting his picture on the inside of the sandals, so that he might be trodden upon."

Shoes of Red and Blue.

"One of our newest fashions—that of wearing red, green, or blue shoes of the sandal type—is our latest revelation to Egyptian fashions. Egyptian ladies were particularly fond of their sandals. These were often worn of palm leaves and papyrus, but were sometimes cut out of leather and lined with cloth. Conceals for an individual was expressed by painting his picture on the inside of the sandals, so that he might be trodden upon."

Dresses Often Transparent.

"Prototypes of the modern Egyptian ladies at the courts of the Pharaohs were loose flowing robes of finest texture and transparent quality which were fastened at the waist by girdles adorned with beads, or ornaments of various colors. On many of the figures of the temples the outline of the transparent robe has been effected. The Egyptians, like the Greeks, represented the contour of the figure as if seen through the dress."

"One of the most peculiar habits of dress among the early Egyptians was that of tying a false beard upon the chin. It was made of plaited hair and its form denoted the social status of the wearer, that of private individuals being quite short, that of the king very long and square at the bottom, and that of a god curling up at the end. After his death a king was represented with the beard of a deity. Queen Hatshepsut, who exerted such a great influence over the fashions of the country as the wife and sister of Thutmose III, wore the long square beard, and had herself referred to as 'His Majesty.'"

NEW SALEM MAN IS HELD FOR LARCENY

ROCKWOOD, May 18.—S. A. Arnold and J. E. Johnson, both of New Salem, were arrested at Rockwood by Constable Homer Bowman on Wednesday and lodged in the county jail at Somerset on a charge of larceny. They were held before Justice of the Peace Charles J. Harrison, Jr., at Rockwood, where they were released, but having been connected with the crime, McGuffey had lost his pocketbook containing a sum of money and a check for a suit. The pocketbook was found by Howard H. Boone, member of the Farmers National Bank of Somerset. Arnold having learned the details of the theft, went to the bank and identified the pocketbook as his own. He appropriated the money and secured the suitcases left Somerset. It was thought that he went to the bank and Sheriff Griffith placed Constable Bowman to apprehend the man. Bowman found Arnold in company with Johnson at the Western Maryland depot ready to board a train and placed them both under arrest.

Michigan Girl 184 Times a Bridesmaid

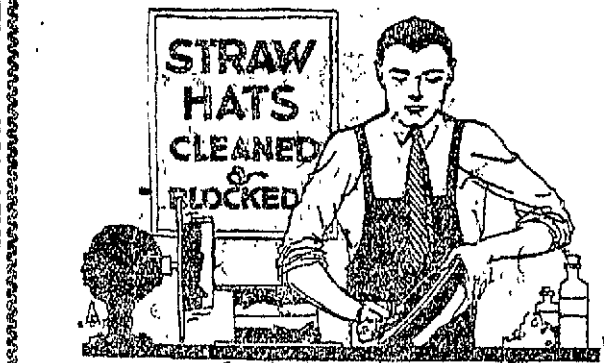

BUSSEMER, Mich., May 18.—Miss MacFarlane of Bussemer has been a bridesmaid 184 times, but does not worry in the least, she says, about the city superstition that "twice a bridesmaid and you never marry." For Miss MacFarlane is young and pretty.

Jager to wed and frequently overlooking many important details. The couple arrived at the court house here with the license and rings, but without witnesses.

In being a bridesmaid, the judge invariably sends down for Miss MacFarlane, a deputy county clerk, and she's never been known to fail.

As Good as Your Word.

Be careful to keep your promises to children, whether they be to reward or punish. A child soon learns whether a parent means to do what is promised. Exercise patience with a child. If you cannot do this, how can you expect the child to learn patience and obedience?

WRIGHT-METZLER CO

Attention! Mr. Sand and Gravel User

If you are contemplating any new or repair work of concrete, plastering or brick work—we have just the kind of material you will need.

Pure Allegheny River Sand and Gravel

This material is recommended by all State Highway engineers, plasterers and brick layers as the best that can be obtained. When you do concrete work you do it with the expectation of it lasting a lifetime. To have it do this it is essential to use the best material you can buy.

There was a time we thought that coke ashes mixed with a little cement was just the thing—but we have found out different. Those days are gone forever.

The pure Allegheny River sand and gravel is taken from the Allegheny River below Pittsburgh and is free from coke ashes and dirt that is detrimental to concrete work or plaster. The gravel is screened over a one and a quarter inch sieve (there is nothing over that size) and runs down to shot or real small gravel.

We have large stocks of this material on hand at all times, and can supply you with large or small quantities promptly.

OUR SERVICE IS GOOD AND OUR PRICES ARE RIGHT. If you will call us on either phone or come to our yards located on South Arch Street, just back of the Hyndman Building on the H. O. R. R. we will be glad to show you this material and give you all the information we can in regards to its use.
